

The Hunt for the Apprentice Time Is Money

Time is money – a well coined phrase which perfectly describes the true essence of our latest Treasure Hunt...The Hunt for the Apprentice. The Hunt for the Apprentice is designed to test your group's planning and negotiation skills, time management and business acumen. Teams will be judged not only on the successful completion of a treasure hunt, but also on the ability to buy a series of everyday items at the lowest possible price.

The team who spends the least amount of money upon completion of the event will win.

Stage One: Crack The Code...

The Hunt for the Apprentice is a two-stage event. Stage One is a Treasure Hunt which uses the latest text-messaging technology to give it a modern twist. Each team will need to crack a series of clues around the location as quickly as possible in order to reveal their six digit Master Code. Each team will need to text this Master Code and await their outcome!

Stage Two: Start Negotiating...

If the Master Code is correct, the team will receive a reply text message containing a shopping list of everyday items. This marks the start of Stage Two where the team will need to negotiate hard to purchase these items for the cheapest possible price. Financial penalties will apply for missed and incorrect items so team work and an eye for detail are essential.

Team Challenges

Each team will be given a digital camera for use in completing a number of Team Challenges, giving each team the opportunity to generate additional income. These challenges are generally of a photographic nature, with any additional income earned being added to that team's grand total at the end of the game.
